Selby Jones, Claiming to Be a Re turned Volunteer, Cuts Up Some Queer Capers at the Corner of Main and Second South Streets-Is Arrested For Drunkenness.

An example of the extremes a man will go to when he is full of Hannaism and whisky, was amply shown at a little before 9 o'clock last evening, Selby Jones, who claims to be a returned volunteer, is a good follower of Hanna, and didn't like the idea of illuminating the triumphal arch in honor of the silver champion, William J. Bryan. Not satisfied with airing his grievance to the bystanders, he deliberately lit five or six matches in an endeavor to burn down the such

The crowd, of course, wouldn't stand such talk as that very long, and Jones had to clear out to "green fields and pastures new," where other unwilling listeners would quickly pass him on. he winked his eye knowingly. Something else attracted Eddington's attention, and when he again looked around,
Jones had vanished.

Acting Sergeant William Hilton was Jones' next confident. "I'd like to do something, but I'm scared," he faid, mysteriously. Hilton told him to be careful, or he'd do something he was sorry for, and Jones mingled with the crowd again.

The next seen of the disciple of Marcus was at the northwestern corner of the arch. He had five or six matches, and was endeavoring to ignite the canvas. Chief of Police Hilton saw him in the act, and quickly stopped him. Abe Randolph then made his appearance and took charge of Jones. The patrol wagon came up in a few minutes, and it wasn't long before Jones was giving his name to the desk sergeant.

At the station he persisted in his statements that it was "a d-d shame to let Bryan go under that arch." and he would state nothing further. He was booked as a plain drunk, and hustled off into durance vile.

Mr. Baker's friends complied with the officer's request, but the gentleman in question, after saying that he would leave, did not do so. This exasperated Officer Lincoln, who took hold of Mr. Baker and was in the act of electing. This resulted in a clinch, and in the struggle Mr. Baker fell over a pile of chairs, with the unfortunate con-sequences told above. He was carried into one of the offices of the Sait Palace and Dr. Childes Mantor was requested to attend to his injuries, but this he refused to do, saying that he did not want to be mixed up in any row. TRIED TO FIRE ARCH LOW RATES FOR SHORT TALKS NEW UTAH NATIONAL

HALP MINUTE RASIS.

New Schedule of Intertown Tolls Effective Oct. 1 Through Utah, Ida-

TELEPHONE COMPANY ADOPTS

Commencing Oct. 1, the Rocky Moun tain Bell Telephone company will put into effect a new schedule of rates for conversations between towns in Utah and between points on the lines in Montana, Idaho and Utah, extending from Great Falls, Mont, on the north to Nephi, Utah, on the south. Lower rates for short take will be the advantage to patrons of the service.

A half minute will be the basis of computing the tolls. For example, the present tariff for a talk of five minutes or less between Sait Lake and Pocatello, the distance being 200 miles, would be $2, but for a half minute conversation the charge will be 50 cents. Additional half minutes will be charged for at a decreasing ratio. conversations between towns in Utal

Additional half minutes will be charged for at a decreasing ratio.

The new tariff has been in operation in Montana and in the Coeur d'Alene region for several months, and gives the utmost satisfaction to telephone pairons. At yesterday's meeting of the telephone company's board of directors authority was given the executive officers to make the new schedule applicable to the entire system in Utah, idaho and Montana.

When it is considered how many questions and answers can be exchanged through a 'phone in half a minute, the new service and tolks, compared with telegraphing, cannot fail to be appreciated for long distance conversations.

The control of the bank shares is now in the hands of a few. By a large majority the propositions, if they are made at all, to appoint a receiver and to go into voluntary liquidation, will be voted down. It is also authoritatively stated that the required majority of votes will authorize the levying of a sufficient assessment to put the bank's affairs in splendid condition and build up the business anew.

the Utah National's old patrons and prospective new ones.

As to the personnel of the bank's new officers in a couple of months hence, it is too early to speculate upon now, but there is no doubt that James Chipman and Gill S. Peyton will be prominently identified with the new board.

board.

Speaking of the readjustment of the Utah national's affairs, an official of the bank said yesterday that the prospect of placing the institution in the front rank of the financial houses of Sait Lake in a few weeks is very assumed.

No Change In Name.

Will the name of the bank be changed?" was asked.

"Certainly not," replied the official.
"No depositor in the Utah National bank has ever lost a cent, nor suffered in any way by it. The actions of some of the bank's former officials brought the bank into disrepute. We are in good shape now, able to pay every doilar, but the business must and will be built up by an infusion of new blood on the lines stated. In a-little while the people will have forgotten all about the Stoutt-Jones episodes and the later discord between some of the shareholders. This is not unusual, however, for I can tell you of any number of the strongest banks in the country that strongest banks in the country that have passed through such gales, run out the kickers, reorganized and have done and are now doing more business than ever, on correct and safe banking principles.

"Just keep your eye on the Utah Na-tional bank," concluded the official.
"We will flourish from now on in a way that will make some people sick at heart."

MRS. ANDERSON WAS BOSS

HUSBAND PROTESTED AND FIGHT RESULTED.

Mr. Anderson Says He Is Going to Swear Out a Complaint Against His Spouse.

Charles C. Anderson, who lives at 339 Second East street, has troubles of his own. His wife is a big, muscular woman, and for some time past she has managed and for some time past she has managed things at their little cottage. Last night, while the two were up town. Charley rebelled against his subordination, and said that he wasn't going to be bossed any longer. His wife told him that his view of the case was interesting but not conclusive. She then proceeded to prove it, and on the corner of Third South and Main street she let into Charley. A crowd formed, and ring was made, and the contestants were urged on by the spectators.

Officer Eddington came running up after two rounds had been fought and tried to take the couple in. He got Charley all right, but the wife wouldn't come. The officer argued and persuaded and then attempted to use force, but his attempts were not effectual. Mrs. Anderson wanted it understood that she was going homeand she went.

Anderson said at the police station that he had stood his wife's arbitrary conductiong enough.

"I don't want to follow O'Brien's example," gaid he, "and get 100 days in fail but I'm going to do something. That woman must be arrested."

The officer told him to swear out a complaint against her, and he said that he'd be around Monday to do it. hings at their little cottage. Last night.
